

Plurality University

expose everyone to stories, images, metaphors ...
emerging from wholly different cultures and practices

consider that everyone should be futurists (not professional futurists, “citizen-futurists”, capable of projecting themselves and their communities towards diverse futures and reflecting on their desirability, on how to get there, on what it tells us about the present, on how to work with uncertainty and controversy, etc.)

broaden the set of “thinkable futures”
